Essays upon some Controverted Questions.

By THOMAS H. HUXLEY, F. R. S., author of "Man's Place in Nature," "Lay Sermons," etc. 12mo. Cloth, $2.00.

In this volume Professor Huxley has brought together a number of his more important recent essays, and has added certain new matter. Among the topics discussed are "Mr. Gladstone and Genesis," "The Evolution of Theology," "Science and Pseudo-Science," "Agnosticism," and "The Rise and Progress of Palæontology."

The Hope of the Gospel.

By GEORGE MACDONALD, author of "Unspoken Sermons," "Robert Falconer," etc. 12mo. Cloth, $1.00.

In this volume Dr. MacDonald, writing in a simple, graphic, interesting way, deals with various modern phases of religious belief. He discusses sin and its penalty, the reward of obedience, and the relations of men to their Creator and to each other. At a time when there is so much inquiry and unrest among thinking people, the frank discussions and strong arguments of this book will be specially pertinent and helpful.

"Recent American fiction can show nothing better than Mr. Garland's work."—Chic. Times.

LAMBSON: I missed my new tennis belt from my room yesterday, Mrs. Grinder, and this morning you had tripe for breakfast.

MRS. GRINDER (the landlady, haughtily): Well, sir, what of it?

LAMBSON: Is there anything special that you would like me to get to-day?

"Well, no," replied Miss Buckeye. "Our usual custom is to slice it thin and fry it."

IT is a pleasure to congratulate Mr. W. W. Astor on his success in beating all the news bureaus, and in particular the official Astor news bureau in this city. LIFE has special (and strictly reliable) information that for a week past, and since he read his notices in the New York papers, a large part of Mr. Astor's corporeal surface has turned black and blue in consequence of his pinching himself at brief intervals to ascertain if he were really there. If Mr. Astor desires to make a thank-offering for recovery from illness in the teeth of the entire American press, the subscription-list of LIFE'S Fresh Air Fund is open to him.

ALL the New York journals printed the news of Mr. W. W. Astor's death, but it was left for a Chicago contemporary to publish an eye-witness's account of Mrs. Astor's irrepressible grief. The ground is so thin under Chicago that a wide-awake man with his ear to it can catch a good deal of exclusive information.

LIFE represents at least one earnest platoon out of the army of American readers who want to hear better accounts of the health of Mr. George William Curtis. These many years the alluring task of writing Mr. Curtis's antemortem obituary has tempted his friends, some of them beyond their capacity for self-control. The verses beginning

> Curtis, whose Wit, with Fancy arm in arm,
> Masks half its muscle with its skill to charm

are the evidence of Mr. Lowell's inability to deny himself the happiness of singing the praises of a man of whom there are only praises to be sung. And even Mr. Dana, who has more self-restraint in some directions than Mr. Lowell had, broke out the other day in a different form but in the same direction. Obviously Mr. Curtis's merits are a dangerous subject, not lightly to be meddled with by a journal like LIFE, of emotional possibilities and limited conveniences for eulogy.

LIFE tenders to Mr. Andrew Carnegie its unaffected sympathy in the concern he must have felt at the lock-out at Homestead. In view of Mr. Carnegie's known sentiments, as recorded in various of his published works, the friction at Homestead could not have become serious if he had been on hand to pour the oil of arbitration into the hot box of dispute. He must realize now how, sharper than a serpent's tooth, it is to have an arbitrary young partner with a defective memory for his recorded views on labor questions. He must realize also that the expense of coaching in England is not wholly covered by hotel-bills.

A TRULY successful man was Cyrus Field. He did great things, and though other men eventually reaped most of the financial benefit of them, the glory is his. His end resembled General Grant's in that the personal misfortunes that clouded its close did not dim the renown of his achievements. It was characteristic of the quality of his manhood, that the pecuniary reverses he met with in his age never shook him, and that the repeated blows that brought him down were shocks to his affections.

IT is a satisfaction to be able to report that the Republican National Committee have finally thrown out their life-line to some purpose and caught Mr. Carter, of Montana, for their chairman. It began to seem doubtful whether the Republican pilgrimage this year was going to be a personally conducted picnic or a failure with no one responsible.

HOW IT IS USUALLY DONE.

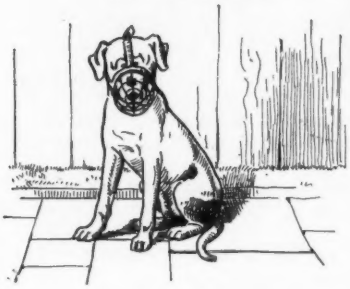
TAKE ANY QUIET, WELL BEHAVED DOG AND PUT A MUZZLE ON HIM.



OF COURSE HE WON'T LIKE IT.

LIKE A SENSIBLE DOG HE WILL TRY TO GET IT OFF.

WHEN HE FINDS HE CANNOT

"WHY, WILLIE GREEN, YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT A BOASTER IS! SUPPOSE TOMMY TOODLES WERE TO COME TO YOU AND SAY HE EXCELLED ALL THE OTHER BOYS IN THEIR STUDIES; THAT HE COULD JUMP HIGHER, RUN FASTER, SWIM BETTER, AND COULD OUTDO EVERY BOY IN THE SCHOOL AT EVERYTHING. NOW, WHAT WOULD YOU CALL TOMMY TOODLES?"

Willie Green (with decision): A LIAR!

PLEASE RETURN.

NOW all you pretty maids in town
Take heed of my sad plight.
I've lost a kiss—I'll give a crown
To get it back to-night.

I threw it, poet like, I own,
Up to a silvery star.
I must confess I should have known
I could not throw so far.

But, Oh, surprise! it circled 'round
And sank as though 'twere laden
With love—when almost to the ground
'Twas caught by some young maiden.

And that young maid I wish to find.
I've lost a kiss, alack!
It is not hers. She'll not be kind
Unless she gives it back.

Tom Hall.

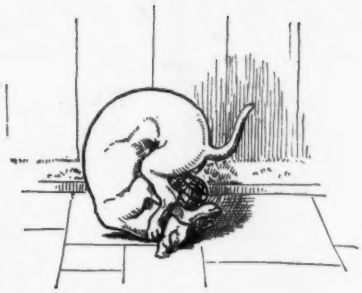
BINGO: Since your mother came that whiskey hasn't lasted half so long.

MRS. BINGO: Dear me. You don't mean to accuse her, do you?

BINGO: Great Scott. No. I'm the guilty one.



HE WILL BECOME A LITTLE NERVOUS,

AND FINALLY GETS ANGRY,

AND THEN IS THE TIME TO CRY "MAD DOG!" AND SET THE MOB ON HIM.

WITH THE USUAL RESULT.

CORRECTING HIMSELF.

"WHO does this book belong to?" asked Mr. Livewayte, the president of the Chicago Literary Society, as he took up a volume.

"Is that question grammatical?" asked his wife.

"How stupid of me, to be sure. To whom does this book belong to?"

A SUNDAY SCHOOL STORY.

"PA," said Japhet, "if the unicorn dies may I have his horn for a cane?"

"Yes, my son," said Noah," but, although the unicorn is quarreling all the time with the lion, I should hate to have him die. You will find the prussic acid in the medicine chest."

And, hence, it was, little children, that the unicorn became extinct, and Japhet walked ashore at the end of the trip with a handsome walking stick in his hand.

MRS. MADISON: Do you believe matches are made in heaven?

MR. BEEKMAN: I used to, but you know I'm married.

A DOG-DAY OPERA.

MR. HENRY A. DIXEY is unquestionably a great favorite with the New York theatre-going public. No better proof is needed than that with an old opera like "The Mascot," he is able to attract full houses to Palmer's Theatre in July weather. The part of Lorenzo does not give Mr. Dixey unlimited opportunity for the display of his abilities, but he makes all there is of it. Miss d'Arville—bar a dime-museum fashion of pronouncing her English in singing—is a comely and sweet-voiced Bettina. Mr. Pruette, whose figure indicates that sheep-keeping promotes obesity, is an excellent Pippo. The support in general is good, and the chorus quite up to the mark, musically and physically. Mr. Dixey's appearance in "The Mascot" is only preliminary to the production of a second edition of his former "Adonis" under the title of "Adonis II."

UPHOLDING THE DIGNITY OF THE SEX.

YOUNG ARMY OFFICER (to daughter of naval officer): So that is your White Squadron. Why do they call those masts "military," I wonder.

SHE: I don't know, unless it's because they stand up straight and do nothing.

THERE is a rumor afloat to the effect that the junior senator from New York contemplates resigning from the august body which he ornaments with his statesmanship. LIFE does not blame him. The pay is small, the Senate does not afford many opportunities for the practical politician, and the next four years, whether Mr. Cleveland or Mr. Harrison is elected President, can not contain a great amount of unalloyed bliss for Senator Hill. Looked at from his own point of view we think his resignation would be an advantage. It would also give the State of New York a chance to secure a real representative in the upper house. Furthermore, if Senator Hill would take off his coat and go vigorously to work for the success of the Democratic ticket he would gain a good deal of admiration and wouldn't be so frequently pictured with a knife up his sleeve.

IN POLITE SOCIETY.

TWEEDLEDUM, JR. (to Tweedledum Sr.): By Jove, Miss Tweedledee's looking as old as her mother!

MRS. TWEEDLEDEE (unexpectedly, unoblivious): Who is taking my name in vain?

TWEEDLEDUM SR.: Let me hasten to plead guilty. As we were saying, Charles and I, you are looking as young as your daughter!

IT is refreshing at this time of the year to have our attention directed to the cold nerve of the congressmen who vote the annual appropriation to the bureau which has in charge the U. S. Geological Survey. This bureau spends from half a million to a million dollars a year ostensibly in making maps and surveys which never were of use to any one and never will be. The real use of the appropriation is to make salaried positions for the dissipated sons of the congressmen who vote for the annual steal.

OLD FARMER HEAGLE, in Chemung, needed water for his stock, and began to sink ell. It was a laborious operation. Gradually the work neared its completion, and uccess seemed assured. Alas, one day, just as he was putting on the finishing touches, well caved in, and the labor of weeks came to naught. For a few moments Farmer gle beat his breast and tore his hair in mute despair. Then he had an inspiration. ook off his coat and hat and carefully laid them on the brink of the ruined well. n he secreted himself under a neighboring haystack and awaited developments. Soon ighbor passed the place and went to the well to inspect it. He discovered its precari- condition, and seeing Heagle's coat and hat near by, naturally concluded that the rtunate man had been engulfed in the ruin, and was now lying at the bottom of his . Impelled by a feeling of humanity, he ran to the neighboring farm houses and gave larm. The news spread like a flash, and before long a vast concourse of farmers had regated around the spot. With picks and spades they dug away at the well, until had it completely excavated. It was a long and laborious piece of work, but sym- y for the unfortunate man, and an earnest desire to rescue him, lent strength to the rers. At length the task was completed and the well dug out. There was no vestige Heagle. After searching for him in vain, the tired workers went home. Then Heagle ged from his hiding-place, thankful that human sympathy had not entirely died out the face of the earth.—New York Sun.

GEORGE, dear," said the young wife as her husband was about to kiss her before g down town, "the dressmaker is coming to-day, and she will probably be here to er this evening."

"Then, darling," said the young husband, the glad light of a deep revenge shining in his deep blue eyes, "have some of that huckleberry pudding that your mother taught you to make. Make it with your own hands, dear, for," he went on, with a strange glitter in his eyes, "I want to make a dead sure thing of it."—Cloak Review.

A GOOD-LOOKING, well-to-do and popular young bachelor of an interior town was being teased by the young ladies of a club for not getting married. He said: "I'll marry the girl of your club whom, on a secret vote, you elect to be my wife." There were nine members of the club. Each girl went into a corner, and used great caution in preparing her ballot, and disguised the handwriting. The result of the vote was that there were nines votes cast, each girl receiving one. The young man remains a bachelor, the club is broken up, and the girls are all mortal enemies, united in the one determination that they will never speak to that nasty man again.—Washington Herald.

Buffalo Lithia Water

In Bright's Disease of the Kidneys.

A Patient well-nigh in extremis entirely Restored by its Use.

Dr. JNO. W. WILLIAMSON, of Boydton, Va., says:

"A member of my family suffered from CHRONIC BRIGHT'S DISEASE of the KIDNEYS. There was DROPSICAL effusion, the urine rich in ALBUMEN, an abundant sediment containing CASTS and decided manifestations of URÆMIC POISONING, especially serious impairment of VISION—URÆMIC AMAUROSIS. After a signal failure of every remedy suggested by several eminent medical men, and when the condition of the patient was regarded as well-nigh hopeless, trial was made of BUFFALO LITHIA WATER, Spring No. 2. The result was relief from the threatening symptoms so prompt and decided as to be almost incredible to any but an eye-witness. The continued use of the water for several months resulted in a complete recovery. SEVERAL YEARS HAVE NOW ELAPSED AND THERE HAS BEEN NO RETURN OF THE DISEASE.

"From the action of this Water in this particular case, I have no hesitancy in expressing the opinion that as a remedy in this malady, so difficult of successful treatment, it is unsurpassed, if indeed it has any equal, either among medicines or mineral waters. To all suffering from BRIGHT'S DISEASE, in whatever stage, my advice would be to give it a trial. It can certainly do no harm, and in very many cases will do great good.

SPRINGS NOW OPEN FOR GUESTS.
